Dear CSUSM community,

Many in our community are experiencing anxiety, concern and uncertainty amid recent events happening globally and here at home. Right here, right now in our region, people are living in constant fear due to increased federal immigration enforcement activity. I want to acknowledge this difficult moment for so many of you, our students, staff, faculty and families.

During this challenging time, we continue to be committed to being a welcoming and supportive campus for all, and that includes each and every individual who is a part of this community. As a reminder, CSUSM complies with and upholds all applicable state laws, which prohibit public universities from enforcing federal immigration law on campus.

I want to make sure you know we are here for you. Team members are standing by this summer to assist anyone who needs care, support or resources. You can find more information and resources here:

- Support & Services for Immigration-Impacted Communities
- CSU Systemwide Undocumented Student Resources
- CSUSM's Global Programs and Services are available for international students
- Free legal services for current students, staff, faculty and their immediate family members
- Any students, staff or faculty can find guidance for encounters with immigration officials on our student support resources page.
- Student Health and Counseling Services is also ready to assist you.
    - For after-hours counseling, please call: (760) 750-4915 and press 2 to be directly connected with a mental health crisis counselor who is contracted with SHCS 24 hours/7 days a week.

Please know that we are here to support you and you can reach out if you need help.

With care,

Ellen J. Neufeldt
President
