Homophobia as a Global Health Threat

Dr. Andy Spieldenner

Global Gay Rights and Public Health Advocate

With the startling rise in anti-LGBTQ policies and laws across the world, many countries are backtracking on LGBTQ human rights. This has a direct impact on public health as LGBTQ people are removed from surveillance systems, increased homophobia in health care settings and other government agencies, and reduced resources for LGBTQ-led organizations. As seen in the mpox outbreak, inclusion of LGBTQ people in public health can have meaningful impact.
